

AIPIO ROUND TABLE SERIES

The AIPIO Round Tables Series is a key component of AIPIO's Thought Leader Program. These events feature a panel of prominent industry leaders from government, academia, and other sectors engaging in a facilitated discussion on a pressing issue facing the intelligence workforce today.

The release of the independent intelligence review marks a pivotal moment for the intelligence community, offering fresh insights, evaluations, and forecasts that can significantly shape strategies, operations, and future capabilities.

This Round Table will delve into the recently published independent intelligence review sparking discussion on its broader implications for a thriving intelligence community's resilience, adaptability, and readiness for future challenges.

Decoding the Independent Intelligence Review 2024: Implications for a Thriving Intelligence Community

Chris Taylor
ASPI

Head of ASPI's Statecraft & Intelligence Centre, Chris has written extensively on Australia's independent intelligence review system and is a former senior national security official.

Dr Miah Hammond-Errey
Strat Futures

Dr Miah Hammond-Errey is the founding CEO of Strat Futures, Technology & Security podcast host and Associate Professor at Deakin University.

Jane van Tienen
OSINT Combine

Jane is Chief Intelligence Officer at OSINT Combine, driving intelligence strategy, strategic communications, and thought leadership in open-source intelligence capability.

Nigel Johns
Cellebrite

Nigel has over 20 years policing experience in the QPS and currently serves as an Investigative Unit Specialist with Cellebrite.

Dr Phil Kowalick
Facilitator

Phil is the President of AIPIO and is one of Australia's preeminent thought leaders in law enforcement, intelligence and national security. He played a key role in many of Australia's most important law enforcement programs and initiatives.

Thursday 26 June 2025 | 6pm–8pm AEST | Online only

Members $30 | Non-Members $60 | Students (unwaged) $15

REGISTER FOR EVENT

Proudly Sponsored by

